Political.

The official returns place the Connecticut at the late election as follows: Democratic, 53,785; Republican 44,301; Prohibition, 2,899; Democratic plurality, 9,584; Majority, 6,661. For Congressmen the Democrats majority was 1,870.

Gov. Kellogg's message to the Louisiana legislature.

islatute gives an unexpectedly encouraging outlook. He says: "It is a most hopeful sign, when, as now, citizens of all political parties seem inclined to take the management of their affairs into their own hands, and sink their personal and party aims, unite to advance the general welfare."

The Louisiana troubles have been compromised to the apparent satisfaction of all concerned. The legislature adopted a resolution declaring that without approving the Kellogg government, it should not be disturbed, and the governor shall be accorded all necessary and legitimate support in maintaining the laws and advancing the peace and prosperity of the State.

The second election in Providence, Rhode Island, resulted in the success by 800 maj. of the Republicans ticket supported by the liquor interest. This probably insures the selection of Tilden as governor, and the repeal of the prohibitory and State constabulary acts.

The Louisiana Compromise.

[New Orleans Telegram, Dec. 15.]

The report of the committee on elections, embodying the terms of the Webster-Ashburton bill, was introduced in the House on the 13th. All of the members displaced made speeches or remarks expressing their acquiescence and their hopes of peace in Louisiana. Mr. Perdrix, of Assumption parish, one of the colored members ousted, said he had the satisfaction in giving up his seat to know that his old master, who had always been just and kind, would take his place. This was an honor which did not occur every day, and further withdrew with pleasure in favor of his former owner because the gentleman's hands were not stained with political blood, and he could not turn against his right.

The following resolution was adopted by the House, to 98 to 18—being 45 Democrats and 44 Republicans in the affirmative, and 13 Democrats and 5 Republicans in the negative:

Resolved, by the General Assembly of the State of Louisiana, That said Assembly, without approving the same, will not disturb the present State government, claiming to have been elected in 1872, known as the Kellogg government, or seek to impeach the Governor for any past official acts, and that henceforth we will accord to said Governor all necessary and legitimate support in maintaining the laws and in advancing the peace and prosperity of the people of this State, and that the House of Representatives, as to its members, be constituted as follows:

Thos. Tilton, H. C. Rutherford, W. A. Wheeler, W. P. Frye, Samuel F. Marshall, C. N. Potter, and Wm. M. Phelps, shall remain without change, except by resignation or death of members, until a new general election; and that the Senate, as to its members, be constituted as follows:

Gen. J. H. Grant is to resign his commission in the army and go into business in Chicago.

Henry W. Duton, senior proprietor of the Brown Transcript, died on the 16th, aged 70 years.

MISCELLANY.

BEFORE AND AFTER SCHOOL.

"Quarter to nine, boys and girls, do you hear?" "Once a buckwheat then—be quick, mother dear." "Where is my luncheon box?"—"Under the shelf." "Just in the place you let it yourself!" "I can't say my table!" "Oh, find me my cap!" "One kiss for mamma, and sweet Sis in her lap!" "Be good, dear!"—"I'll try."—"9 times 9's 81!" "The four minutes!"—"All right. Hurry up Bill; lets run!" With a slam of the door they are off, girls and boys, And the mother draws breath in the full of their noise!

AFTER SCHOOL.

"Don't wake up the baby! Come gently, my dears." "Oh, mother, I've torn my new dress, just look here!" "I'm sorry, I was only clutching the wall." "Oh, mother, my map was the moist of all!" "Amarilli, in spelling, went up to the head!" "Oh, say, can I go out on the hill with my sled?" "There's such a toothache!"—"The teacher'sular!" "Is dinner much ready? I am just like a bear!" Be patient, worn mother, they are growing up fast. These nursery whirlwinds, not long do they last! A still lonely house would be far worse than this noise. Rejoice and be glad in your brave girls and boys!

OSHKOSH IN THE VATICAN.

[Dr. J. N. Hyde, of Chicago, in the Overland for April.]

Lieutenant Dixon was one of those redoubtably youths, full of muscle and ambition, who make great. West has contributed to the roll of officers of the United States Navy. His exterior, it must be confessed, was neither that of a Beau Brummel nor yet of an Admirable Crichton. He was, it is true, large of limb and tall of stature; but then he had also red hair, square brows and jaw, a straggling beard, and wide set teeth. He spoke the French and German languages as though he were cracking nuts between those same teeth, and his appearance in the dance was highly suggestive of the motions of the farm-horse in his old home at Oshkosh.

When his vessel, the United States sloop-of-war Muskaloosa, was stationed at Civita Vecchia in Italy, in the year 1866, he visited the Eternal City on a leave of absence, and took up his residence in the Hotel de Rome, on the Corso. He was assigned an apartment on the third floor of that spacious hotel, and there he soon forgot the ship biscuit and salt pork that are as inseparable from sea-cruising in the Mediterranean as in old historic waters.

It happened that his room faced upon an alley on the other side of which was a large two-story residence, one of whose windows was exactly opposite his own. This circumstance of itself would hardly require mention, were it not for the additional fact that twice every day—at ten in the morning and four in the afternoon—he discovered he had for a vis-a-vis the girl face and graceful figure of a lovely young Italian. The rough stone work of the old walls made a frame that contrasted delightfully with the bright picture it inclosed. The Lieutenant concluded that he had never before seen anything so beautiful as she.

Whether this was due to that isolation from all representations of the sex which is incidental to the life of a sailor, or to the natural susceptibility of the heart of youth, is a matter of conjecture. It can only be said that, with him, to look was to look long and often, and surprise was soon succeeded by admiration.

The young lady, Signorina Aliza Cozza, was related to Monsignore Bella, a gentleman well known in political and religious circles in Rome. He was understood to have decided inclination to sweep into the heart of the hat of a cardinal. But of this, of course, Lieutenant Dixon knew nothing. She only saw clearly enough that the young girl was about 16 years old, and had great lustrous black eyes, that served a double purpose: they not only gave forth the indescribable light that dances in the eyes of youth and beauty, but they also reflected portraits of young gentlemen with red cheeks and incipient whiskers. Her hair was as black and almost as plentiful of light as her eyes. And as to her figure, that was as graceful and lithe as the famous Sabine ladies that her remote ancestors had back captive and reluctant brides to their homes in ancient Rome. Dixon could hardly blame those old Latin bachelors.

She did not apparently notice the advances made by her neighbor, but we may be quite confident that she had a suspicion of the trouble brewing beneath the broad chest that covered his broad shoulders that covered his broad chest, for although, as we have said, he commenced by looking, it must be confessed that he gradually advanced, the visitor following him across the alley and thrusting expensive bouquets into her lap. I hope the fair Eliza, should this chronicle ever reach her eyes, will pardon the publication of these details. It must be remembered that she was only a young lady, and had neither the requisite strength nor skill to fling the bouquets back again. On these occasions she rose hastily from her seat, and thus the flowers fell to the floor. But somehow they afterward invariably found their way to her toilet table; and sometimes, also, it always happened that when he was at window she was at the door. Abigail was rapidly progressing toward that point when it seemed as if the new hotel and the old pension were to be on most excellent terms with each other, when one morning our Lieutenant heard the young lady singing Rossini's exquisite cavatina, "Una Voce." The voice was that of a sweet and rich contralto, and the words of the native tongue of the fair Italian seemed to the American full of meaning. It led him to form a sudden conclusion. He would secure an introduction to her at all hazards.

"Made no delay in his efforts. It was to discover her secret, and he learned incisively her relative position. Monsignore Bella. Now it so happened that he had already been introduced to monsignors at a reception given by the American Minister at Rome at the legation. His plan was then soon perfected; he would go to monsignore, and ask for a letter of introduction—not to the young lady, but to her father. It could not happen that he would thus be put in communication with the daughter. Lieutenant Dixon drove at once to the Piazza di Spagna, where the gentleman he sought lived in apartments.

It was made already remarked that Monsignore Bella was exceedingly anxious to place upon his head the hat of a cardinal. At this very time he was up to his ears in all sorts of plans and projects, looking to the advancement in the church. He, however, received the lieutenant with considerable courtesy, extended to him one finger, apologetic for the little time at his disposal, and acceded to the request. He promised to send a letter of introduction that very afternoon to the address on the card of his visitor.

Monsignore was as good as his word. The letter of introduction was duly dictated, and read as follows:

My Dear Cozzi: I have the pleasure of introducing to your consideration Lieutenant Eugene Dixon, of the American marine, who will, I doubt not, receive your hands with general hospitality which, I am sure, you will agree he deserves. Particularly yours,

It appeared, however, that Monsignore Bell stimulated, by his ambition and zeal for the church, had occasion to write another letter that same afternoon. Both of these he handed to his valet, with instructions as to their delivery. The latter, however—possibly in consequence of an undue libation of the "lachryma christi" in his master's wine closet—became confused as to the destination of these two epistles. He accordingly dropped the letter of introduction to Cozzi in the mail office, and delivered the other to his visitor.

BELLA.

It appeared, however, that Monsignore had been surprised at the manner in which he was approached by his visitor on this occasion. Dixon strode into the room as though he were pacing the quarter-deck of a Frigate, and, advancing to his Holiness, seized the hand of the latter, and shook it with all the unaffected earnestness of sincerity. "Sir," said he, in his execrable French, "I am delighted to see you. I am proud to make your acquaintance—upon my word I am. Permit me to hand you my card. Mr. Bell, as you are very kind in giving me the letter of introduction. If he hadn't, I think I should have dipped my colors, and introduced myself. You seem to be pretty much at home here. Private office, I suppose, and that sort of thing. Not much of a run, after all, down to your house on the Corso. Well, you don't do much more in the way of style here than I did, when I entered a midshipman's steerage and bade good-bye to the corner grocery in Oshkosh."

The Pope was at first startled, then shocked, and finally convinced that an error had been committed by his visitor. He accordingly recited the fingers of his soft, white hand, in the manner according to which it is customary to give the papal benediction, pronounced the following words in Latin: "Pax tecum—in pace dominici filii!" Now this was a polite intimation to his visitor to terminate the interview.

But the young gentleman had never enjoyed the advantages of a classical education, and was therefore not to be blamed for supposing that his host pointed to the vacant chair in the room, with a request for him to sit down. He accordingly deposited his cocked hat on the floor, placed himself in the chair, tipped it back till his head rested against the adjacent wall, and gazed his companion with the look of the most bland and cheerful satisfaction that ever breathed the air of Rome.

Respectfully yours,

ANDREW CHRISTIANSON.

The Old Man with the Saws.

On a Congress street car, the other evening, was a very quiet lot of passengers, and among them a man about sixty-five years old, having four or five handsaws under his arm, apparently a saw-filer. Opposite the old man sat a woman with a young babe in her arms, and presently a broad grin covered the old fellow's face, and he nodded to the child and said:

"I never loved any thing as I love children! I can hardly keep from biting my little ears!"

He waited a moment and then asked:

"How old is that beautiful child, madam?"

"Eight months," she replied.

"Only eight? Why, I've seen children twenty-five years old who didn't know as that child does! I had a child drowned in a bar'l once, and you don't know, madam, how it floored me!"

He looked around the car for a moment and said, reading from the card:

"Change to the amount of $2 will be furnished by the driver. Well, that's liberal enough. He hasn't offered me any yet, but I suppose old customers will be seen to."

The driver counted noses, saw that he was a fare short, and he jingled the bell.

"Are we near some station?" asked the old man, standing up and looking out.

He sat down after awhile, looked around and, his eyes falling upon the baby, he asked of the mother:

"Couldn't you let me hold him a little while? See him look at me, I'll bet he thinks I'm his father!"

She refused to trust the infant off her knee and the old man's face grew sad, and he sighed as though in pain:

"Just think of it—that innocent child has got to be buried in the ground and eaten up by worms, like the rest of us!"

He wiped his nose on one of the saw-blades, held his hand in his hand, and his eye catching a sign on a grocery, he exclaimed:

"Sweet milk for baby! That makes me think, madam—do you bring your child up on the bottle?"

Her face grew very red, and she made no reply. The old fellow looked his saws over, one by one, laid them down, and went to the front end of the car he picked up a basket containing meat and asked:

"Does any one own this meat?"

A woman made a motion to signify that it was her property, and he uncovered the basket and called out:

"Pork chops and a small piece of veal. People who want to eat veal can gnaw away, but I don't want any! What are your chops a pound, madam?"

She did not answer, and the old man picked up his saws, and asked:

"Does any one here know the name of the man who invented saws?"

No one did, so he pulled the saws off the door and continued:

"Yes, I do love children. I was a child once myself, but I didn't have any fun."

He stood on the platform he went on:

"It will be just like me to fall down when I step off, but of course I won't stay on this car forever. Well, good-by, every body, and pleasant dreams to you."

He stepped off the car, slipped and fell flat in the ditch, while his saws flew in every direction. As the car passed on he was heard saying:

"They ought to have a machine to lift people off the cars."

Madam, Excuse Me, But Your Dress Are Coming Off.

An elderly, rather stoutish woman, of the rural districts, was in town on Sunday. She was seen in serviceable garments of a pattern such as her progenitors wore in the good old primitive days. But she didn't care. She didn't come to town to show off—not a bit of it. She wore a bag on one of her broad shoulders, and her bearing was natural and easy. As she careened down Main street, under easy sail, she encountered two ladies dressed in more modern and fashionable styles, with long, sweeping trains. She stared at them—did this wretched woman—in mute astonishment for a moment, then in the difficulty of getting herself into the situation with a woman's intuition, quickened her steps, and gently laying her hand on one of the lady's arms, she softly whispered: "Madam, excuse me, but your dresses are coming off."

"Daughter, daughter!" ejaculated His Holiness, in an ill-suppressed effort to smother his laughter in his handkerchief.

"My son dost thou not know that the Pope had neither sons nor daughters, save only those to whom he is father, because he is also head of the great family of the church?"

Dixon bounded upward from his chair, and stood, before the mother, in blank amazement. The announcement depicted upon the genial countenance of his host did not escape his attention. "Mr. Pope," said he—"excuse me, your reverence, your holiness, I mean—this is a big blunder, and undoubtedly due to the carelessness of Mrs. Bell." continued he, brightening up, and extending his hand.

"I'm just exactly as pleased to see you as Mr. Cozzi, whom I expected to meet here."

I shall always be proud of the honor conferred upon me by this acquaintance, even though it results from an accident.

"And—"with a slight huskiness of voice, but in tones whose genuine sincerity would have carried conviction to the most stolid of auditors—"upon my honor, I think you're the most perfect gentlewoman I ever met in the course of my life."

"Esguela und minato," responded the pontiff, forgetting the French in his native tongue. He then withdrew from the cabinet, on one side of the apartment two articles which he brought to the center-table, where he inscribed a few words with the pen. He then returned, and laid two gifts in the hands of the astonished youth. One was a photograph of himself in full pontifical robes, taken by the well-known Cuccioni, on the Via Condotti. Beneath this, he had written in a bold hand in the Italian language, "Lieutenant Eugene Dixon, from his friend, Pio Nono." The other was an exquisitely wrought cameo, representing the profile of his face.

"My son," said he, "God bless and return thee safely to thy native land. When I purchased of your agent proved to be all or more than it was recommended. ### Accident.

—Almost a fatal accident occurred at the National Hotel, in this place on Monday. The cistern is under the dining room, and the pump being out of repair they were drawing water through a trap door in the floor, and carrying it into the kitchen, leaving the trap open for a few moments, when Little Marie, a son of Peter Hiss, and about three years old, fell backwards into the cistern, in holes about ten feet to the water and that being about too far deep, he came up half full, but a lady in an adjoining room hearing the splash in the water running into the room screamed, "some one is in the cistern" when Mr. Hiss rushed into the room down into the cistern and rescued his boy. He was lying on the bottom senseless but soon to a few moments after getting him out.

The little fellow, fully explained how he fell in, and it is supposed that the fall of ten feet and striking the water head first, made him insensible.

New Goods. —Mr. Linenfelter, of the firm of Linenfelter & Faber, returned from Chicago last week and is followed by the largest store of goods ever brought to Chaska, which are being opened every day, and selling at panic prices. Give them a call.

Vacation. —The public school close the winter term to-morrow for two weeks vacation. The summer term commences May 10th under the instruction of the same teachers. Mr. Thomas and Miss. C. DuToit.

Bear. —Peter Hiss is making the best bear in Chaska or the state, and cannot supply the demand. Everybody goes bear at Hiss' brewery if he can be recommended, send in your orders. The employees of the Herald hereby return their thanks to Pete for an "eighty."

—C. Thompson came down from Glenwood Monday with another hoarder for Sheriff Peet. This time one James Ferrie is sent up for 30 days by Justice Gilbert for petit larceny.

—Fred Hecklin lost a very fine chick on dog the other day, for which he has been offered $10; a short time before No reward is offered.

—Monday last the summer arrangement went into effect on the H. & B. Railroad, to wit: a train each day from Hastings to Glenwood and return.

The people west of Carver will be gratified no doubt by the change, as every one will be who has any business on the line of that road.

—The next term of the District Court for McLeod County will be held at Glenwood Monday May 10th, which will probably be a long term, as there has been no session held there since last June.

The river has been failing since Sunday last but very slowly, just as though it would delight to wash out the lower town docks.

Assessors.

Last week we stated that assessors were required to meet at the Auditor's office on the last Saturday in April, but we find the Law was amended by the last legislature changing the time to the first Tuesday in May and if any assessor fails to appear on that day, then it is the duty of the town supervisors to declare the office vacant and appoint a successor. The following is an extract of the law as amended:

It shall be the duty of the assessors of each town or district to meet at the office of the county auditor on the first Tuesday of May to receive such books and blanks and to confer together in reference to the performance of their duties, and the failure of any assessor to do so, shall be deemed sufficient cause, and it is hereby made the duty of the board of town supervisors to declare the office vacant and to appoint his successor.

More Fraud.

Another gigantic swindling operation has just been discovered among the clerks in the Post Office department at Washington. It appears that some of the clerks who had the bids for mail routes, opened the envelopes, and destroyed the originals, and inserted others, thus defrauding the government out of its just competition designed by law. It is not known how long this rascality has been going on, but it is long enough to prove, that the departments at Washington need a cleaning out of the clerks, as well as the officials at Washington.

The Hastings Gazette is disgusted with the idea of J. A. Wheeler editing an independent paper and is much disgusted because he has converted the Press into one.

We are very much pleased to see those papers like the old Saint Paul Press come out independently, for that means, it means anything, opposition to the present administration, and that is all there is of the republican party.

When the republican party loses the active support of such an able and persistent advocate and defender as the Press, it is time for the democrats to rejoice in this state, and for sensible republicans to put on their thinking caps and consider their blind support of the administration party for the past eight years.

We made a short visit to Glenwood this week, and found business lively as usual. They have been complaining of dull times, but when the cash receipts of one firm, have been $2,000 for goods sold in three weeks we do not think they can afford much fault.

They have been doing a heavy business in railroad ties the last winter and the companies inspector has "seized" them until there are about as many rejected as accepted. The "tie dealers" of Glenwood do not propose to tie to that business.

Personal.

Col. Baxter is absent for a few days on a visit to St. Cloud and adjacent towns attending to legal matters.

Don't fail to attend the association and spelling match announced in another column.

The water is falling fast in the river. Good time to shoot ducks.

H. A. CHILD, Editor.

The latest novelty in Rochester Minn. is sugar made from the sap of Box Elder, by a gentleman of that city, which is of a lighter color finer grain and more delicate flavor than maple sugar.

Several years ago the Winona & St.
Peter railway company transferred about 600,000 acres of their lands to private parties (stockholders) and when Genl.
Edgerton became Railroad Commissioner he discovered the fact and insisted those lands should be taxed, and his views were confirmed by Attorney General Cornell; the several auditors were directed to place the lands on the tax rolls which was done. The company refusing to pay the tax as action was commenced by the Auditor of Waseca county which was taken to the Supreme Court and the tax sustained, which will bring into the state treasury about $320, 000. Give Mr. Edgerton due credit.

The Rochester people are after the Inebriate Asylum. The last Legislature located the institution at that place to take effect when the Supreme Court should decide the law providing a fund for that purpose to be constitutional.

A case was commenced at Rochester to collect the $10 license of a saloon kept as provided by the Inebriate Asylum
law, an appeal being taken Judge Mitchell has certified the case to the Supreme Court for its decision on the constitutionality of the law.

The late Judge Hall of the Court of Common Pleas in Ramsey county rendered an able opinion, in which he clearly demonstrated that the law was unconstitutional; and we are of the opinion that Rochester will wait a long time before the Supreme Court will decide differently. A more outrageous violation of the right of taxation delegated to the Legislature was never perpetrated by fanatics, than the passage of the so-called Inebriate Asylum law.

The Pioneer-Press of St. Paul contained a long article to prove that Mr. Wheelock never was a high tariff advocate, but has been for years an ardent believer in the principles of free trade, and is in favor of a low tariff, and says there is no conflicting views on the tariff question
between the editors of the late Pioneer and Press. We are pleased to learn this fact, which causes us to place the Pioneer-Press on the side of free trade, and on this subject we have no doubt
the Pioneer-Press will be independent in advocating that principle, with all the vigor the joint editors possess. If so the people of this state will rejoice that they have such an able advocate of that principle of government which may be used for their aggrandizement or their oppression, as it has been for the latter during the past fifteen years.

More trouble in the Louisiana Legislature. The majority have ousted four republicans who were not returned by the returning board and had no certificate of election, but who had been admitted by Grant's military legislature to make a quorum.

The compromise did not mention those in particular but did mention that those returned by the board should remain except those nine who were mentioned and certainly the agreement could not be construed to mean that all the men who had been admitted to seats in that legislature whether elected or not should be retained in the present.
The only question decided in regard to the legislature was as to those nine conservative members claimed to have been elected and counted out by the returning board. Anything for a row down in Louisiana.

Independent Journalism.

Under the above head Frank Daggett of the News Ledger, takes issue with the Pioneer-Press upon the status of the so-called "independent journals and party newspapers, from which we make a few extracts:

"Parties are formed for the purpose of carrying out some specific theories of government which are believed necessary for the general good. They are formed, also, in the interest of certain principles, believed by their partisans to be of vital importance to mankind. That bad men are unscrupulous, ambitious, selfish men, sometimes worm themselves to the front and endeavor to manipulate particulars own selfish interests; thus designing men by artful strategy gain the confidence of a party, and then bring disgrace upon it, cannot be denied, but that it is necessary for an editor, be he Democrat or Republican, to defend them, or to truckle to or be in any manner accessory to their nefarious deeds, we most positively deny."

A true and faithful allegiance to that political party with whose principles one may be in accord, does not require a man to do violence to his own sense of right to outrage his own conscience and trample decency under foot. When this is required, directly or indirectly, the party so requiring has outlived its usefulness.

The Independent Press is the Free Lance of Journalism. It is ranged under one banner to-day, and to-morrow it vows allegiance to another cause. Today it charges one host and to-morrow it has joined another fight, but to-morrow it has joined other forces, it fought so bitterly the day before. It fights "for its own hand," and not for the success of any particular principle. The New York Herald is a sample of the independent Press. As a newspaper, it has a worldwide reputation as a leader, political or otherwise, it has no more influence than a yearling colt. The New York Sun is another handsome specimen of the independent Press. It is satirically independent. It wages an unrelenting war on the party in power; justly or unjustly the Sun cares not.

The Independent Press may have a mission to perform, and probably has, but that it approaches in importance that of the so-styled Party Press, or that it has the sympathy or confidence of the people to as great an extent as the latter we do not for a moment believe."

Now when the entire opposition to the present administration, are in perfect harmony upon three great principles of a republican form of government, why this party was ever kept up by its name neither will the name ever prevent any sensible man from uniting with it if they agree in principle.

The Shakopee Argus, last week contained nearly three columns "on the general stealing fund" (road and bridge fund.) The principal objection we find to be that the county commissioners disburse the road and bridge fund, some of which passes through some one of the commissioners hands. The same irregularity exists in nearly every county; the commissioners like to handle the money it seems, although the law expressly provides that they shall not.
The commissioners hire a piece of work done upon the highway and when it is done, one commissioner gets the money and pays it over, whereas the law requires the bill for the work to be audited and allowed by the board and to wait thirty days before he gets the order, so that if there is any steal in it the proper authorities can take an appeal as in all other cases. We call the attention of our commissioners to that system of disbursing the road and bridge fund, and that there may be an investigation in this county, as investigations are popular nowadays.

The Rockford people are after the Inebriate Asylum. The last Legislature located the institution at that place to take effect when the Supreme Court should decide the law providing a fund for that

rendered an able opinion, in which he clearly demonstrated that the law was
unconstitutional; and we are of the opinion that Rockford will wait a long time
before the Supreme Court will decide differently. A more outrageous violation of the right of taxation delegated
to the Legislature was never perpetrated
by fanatics, than the passage of the so-called Inebriate Asylum law.

The Pioneer-Press of St. Paul contained
a long article to prove that Mr. Wheelock never was a high tariff advocate, but has been for years an ardent believer in
the principles of free trade, and is in favor of a low tariff, and says there is no conflicting views on the tariff question
between the editors of the late Pioneer
and Press. We are pleased to learn this fact, which causes us to place the Pioneer-Press on the side of free trade,
and on this subject we have no doubt
the Pioneer-Press will be independent
in advocating that principle, with all the vigor the joint editors possess. If
so the people of this state will rejoice
that they have such an able advocate of
that principle of government which
may be used for their aggrandizement or
their oppression, as it has been for the latter during the past fifteen years.

The Rockford people are after the Inebriate Asylum. The last Legislature located the institution at that place to take effect when the Supreme Court should decide the law providing a fund for that purpose to be constitutional.

A case was commenced at Rochester to collect the $10 license of a saloon kept
as provided by the Inebriate Asylum
law, an appeal being taken Judge
Mitchell has certified the case to the Supreme Court for its decision on the constitutionality of the law.

The late Judge Hall of the Court
of Common Pleas in Ramsey county rendered an able opinion, in which he clearly demonstrated that the law was
unconstitutional; and we are of the opinion
that Rockford will wait a long time
before the Supreme Court will decide differently. A more outrageous violation of the right of taxation delegated
to the Legislature was never perpetrated
by fanatics, than the passage of the so-called Inebriate Asylum law.
